

Curatoria Rational:

When looking at all of my work I wanted to be able to connect all of them to my theme, which is Self-identity and about my past. Each piece holds different meanings but can connect to my theme. I wanted to express my dark feelings as well as express my culture and my happiness at the same time. When looking through my artwork I realized that many have similar things to each other. When looking at my work I wanted to pick the best one that can relate to my theme the most and also the ones where I have a deep connection to. The artwork that you see is the ones that I have a personal connection to as well as connecting to my theme the most. When looking for ideas that I wanted to express in my pieces, I had to find inspirations that I feel connected to. I also wanted to learn techniques when looking to start a new piece. I want to be able to learn new things that I haven't tried because being able to learn techniques, as well as the material, can give me more knowledge of new art techniques. Most of my work has similar techniques as well as materials because I wanted to play it safe when creating pieces but sometimes I do take risks and try new things. The theme I was going for was self Identity and looking at my past self and seeing how much I have changed. When creating my artwork I want to be able to express my past as well as being able to express my present self. When trying to contribute the meaning in my pieces I try to express it with hue as color can have meaning to it. As well as the linework in the piece can be symbolic. Being able to express my feelings into my piece and being able to use visual to impact the viewer from looking to the depths of shapes and colors. I arranged them from painting to lens work to then pencil to ink work. The reason for this is because I wanted to make it look nice and I also wanted to be able to show the painting together and paper work together. I want them to understand that trying to find out who you are and what make you who you are today take a while but your will find your true self sooner or later. Being able to understand my pain, struggles and my happiness.
